SONGLESS.

Eweet little maid, whose golden rippled head Between me and my grief its beauty rears, With quick demand for song—all singing's dead: My heart is sad; mine eyes are dimmed with

Oh, ask me not for songs! I can not sing; My ill-tuned notes would do sweet music wrong; I have no smile to greet the laughing Spring, No voice to join in Summer's tide of song.

More from October's dying glory takes My heart its hymn; and fuller sympathy Finds w.th the Autumn hurricane that makes

The forest one convulsive agony. Or, when the last brown leaves in Winter fall, While all the world in grim rost fetters hes,

I envy them the snowflake's gentle pall. That hides their sorrows from the frowning skies. Methinks it would be sweet like them to rest-O'er life's mad scene to pull the currain down;

Rest, where no weary dream will pierce the breast Of perished love or unfulfilled renown. No weariness of patient work uncrowned By its reward; no earthly hopes destroyed; No vain desires, nor thing desired and found

Void of enjoyment when at last enjoyed. Perchance when mist of intervening years Softens the Past—as oft at close of day The far grim range all beautiful appears, Klased into brightness by the sanset ray—

When the sharp pang, of bitter memories boru, Has lost its sting, and this my passent pain shows like some ill dream in the light of morn, I'll sing thee o'er the olden songs again.

DORAN'S DESPERATE DEED. He Trades His Overcost of for a Pistol With Which to Slay His Father-in-Law.

From Mr. Chas. H. Pierce, the well-known arton county, yesterday morning a Bazoo remar, Friday evening of which Mr. Pierce was a witness.

A worthl ss kind of a fellow, by the name of Doran, had married the daughter of an old farmer named Smith, who lived three miles from Lamar. Owing to Doran's failure to provide for his wife and child, coupled with his habits of dissipation, caus d Mrs. Doran to take her child and once more take up her abode beneath her father's roof.

Mrs. Doran had be n at her father's home some months, during which time her dissolute husband hung around Lames, and made frequent ineffectual efforts to obtain possession of

Friday morning, by some means, Poran learned his father-in-law would be in Lamar, and he went before a ju-tice of the peace and swore out a peace warrant against the old gentleman, sl. leging that he had threatened to kill him on sight. It is believed now, towever, that this in-formation was fil-d for the purpose of paving the way for the commission of a terrible tragedy. Old man Sighth arrived in Lamar Friday evening, accompanied by a single daughter and Mrs. Doran. They at once repaired to a dry goods house and were engaged in making purchases, when Doran entered and engaged his father in-law in conversation, asking him whether or not he intended giving up the child. The old gentleman answered in the negative, when Doran drew a pistol and fired at his heart. The bullet meet a pistol and fired at his heart. The bullet went true to its aim, and the cowardly miscreant dropped his weapon and ran from the store. The old man, though mortally wounded, picked up the pistol which had fallen at his feet and pursued his fleeing son-in-law. In the place of firing on Doran when he got within thirty or forty feet of him, he hurled the pistol at him, striking him in the back. Doran picked up the revolver, and Mr. Smith turned to Mr. Pierce, who was standing in front of the store

Among those present in court to-day were Jen-kinson, director of the Irish ceremonal investigating department, and Boile, private secretary to Lord Lieutenant Spencer. Before the prisoners were charged, to-day, counsel for Geo. Smith, one of the accused conspirators, made application for the admission of his client to bail, which was refused. Kavanaugh, resuming, desposed as follows.

After the prisoners had said there was no sign of Fitz Norris, witness saw him with a cab coming from the opposite direction, and saw four men alight from the cab. The cab stood a long way up the road, with the horses turned towards Dublin. Shortly after, he saw two gentlemen approaching, and on looking around. saw one of the gentlemen fall. He did not see the other gentleman fall, but the four men whom he drove to the park jumped on his ear, and he drove away. Brady sat on the

He then drove to Leeson park, stopping at a public house near Leeson bridge. Brady then paid and again at Townsend street, and received two pounds. Brady afterwards bought him a set of harness. He allowed the car to remain as it was for some time afterwards. Had it painted on the night Field was attacked. He was on the College street stand. Joe Brady again engaged him. They drove into Fleet street. Delaney then got on the car, and they that the magistrate threatened to clear the room. Brady afterwards somewhat recovered his composure, and endeavored to smile. Kayanaugh said he was so near the scene of the assassination that he heard one of the victims cry Oh! The tall victim, Burke, was lying in the road. After this exclamation the other victim was standing in the road with an umbrella in his hands. Kavanaugh afterwards saw him lying in the road as before stated.

The evidence is felt to be conclusive. Little can e added to it, as the crown will not accept the evidence of actual participants. The prisoners evidently feel that the game is up. All now exhibit a defiant demeanor except James Carey, who sits motionless, gasing fixedly at the beach. The others move about, hold whispered conferences, and laugh at any incident. Kavanaugh further deposed that Fitz Norris on one occasion told him they were after Judge Lawson. Kavanaugh said he be-came informer on Thursday last. He had been sworn into secreey by Kelly. The task assigned him was to drive the boys.

Independent witnesses corroborated having seen Kavanaugh previous to the murder at the public houses he mentioned in his evidence as having visited before he drove to the park.

The case was adjourned to Thursday next.

ST. LOUIS MARKET. Kavanaugh, replying to Murphy, the erown counsel, said that on the 6th of May he wore a white hat, but the man on the car, who was not in the prisoner's dock, charged him with giving him a brown one.
[Note.—This is regarded as important, sait is believed to furnish a clue to the murderer not apprehended.]

The car man was called, and confirmed the statement, testifying that he passed Kavanaugh's car in the park. Samuel Jacobs, a witness at the inquest, deposed seeing the struggle in the park. From a distance of fifty yards he saw the assessing mount the car, eiety, of this city, left to-night over the Baltimore the prostrate form. The prostrate form. He could not say whether four or five men were engaged. Jacobs was unthere. Before the arrival of the bicyclists, two men, one after another, came and looked at the bodies and walked away.

Doyle, Patrick Delaney and Fitz Norris said they had no questions to ask.

Providence, Feb. 10.—The New York and New England passenger train from Boston to this city was derailed near Arnold's Mills by a broken rail. The engine kept the track. The smoker and a passenger car jumped the track and fell on their side.

Kelly's counsel endeavored to shake Kavanaugh sevidence by asking him questions concerning interviews at the castle, and money promised him, but he did not apparently produce much impression.
